

Case Study: Digital Links International – Ghana Teacher Training Colleagues and Schools

The Cadbury Foundation supports Digital Links International to provide ICT facilities and training in Ghana's 38 teacher training colleges.

For Ghana's children to participate in a global knowledge economy their teachers need to have a theoretical grasp of technology. However due to the lack of ICT knowledge of some teachers and, poor ICT facilities at schools means that pupils are failing to develop in a competitive manner for the working world.

The Cadbury Foundation with Digital Links International secures the donation of redundant pcs from private and public corporations in the UK. These pcs are then refurbished and provided at low cost to schools, charities, community organisations and small enterprises.

